Statements indicate Johnson woman was present during one murder, motion says

by Lilly Adkins

PAINTSVILLE — The commonwealth's attorney's office filed a motion Tuesday to set aside the plea agreement involving Amanda Fannin, whose statement was supposedly beneficial in the recovery of the bodies of Larry and Sandra Blanton, resulting in murder charges against her boyfriend and the couple's son, William Blanton.

The motion, scheduled to be brought before Johnson Circuit Court Judge John David Preston on May 17, also asks for an evidentiary hearing to determine whether Fannin violated the terms of the plea agreement.

"Specifically, the Commonwealth alleges that pursuant to the plea agreement, Fannin was to provide a statement concerning her knowledge of the murder of Larry and Sandra Blanton. That as a condition precedent to that agreement she represented that she had no involvement in the murder of the couple, was not at the scene of the murder and only became aware of the murder after the fact," the motion says. "Further Fannin agreed to give a state-

DANA — A Floyd County physician who was arrested April 30 on a child pornography charge entered a not-guilty plea at his arraignment May 1 and was in court Monday for a preliminary hearing.

Dr. Bret A. Dunning, 50, of Dana, is charged with one count of possession of matter portraying sex performance of a minor.

During his preliminary hearing, the investigating officer, Kentucky State Police Det. Jason Merlo told the court that he had viewed an image that showed a young girl approximately 4 to 5 years of age that was completely nude and had her legs spread.

"Our investigation showed approximately 176 images and videos associated with the IP address," Merlo said during testimony.

Assistant Floyd County Attorney Tyler Green said that the judge determined at the preliminary hearing that there is probable cause and referred the case to the grand jury.

"The grand jury will determine when they review the evidence whether additional charges are warranted," Green said. "The Kentucky State Police has all the computer hardware and software, and the electronic crime division is going to investigate to see if they can retrieve information as to the origin of the

THE DRIVER OF an 18-wheeler hauling what appeared to be cap wedges Monday in Martin County apparently lost control of his vehicle, which then overturned. The accident caused most of the load he was hauling to spill into and around the roadway along Rt. 645 beside Save-A-Lot, temporarily creating traffic problems that led to several coal trucks detouring through downtown Inez. No serious injuries were reported.

Report: Tourism spending up in Big Sandy region, state

BSN MANAGING EDITOR

FRANKFORT — Tourism spending increased in counties in the Big Sandy region in 2012, according to the state's annual survey of the tourism industry.

Total tourism expenditures in the 15-county Kentucky Appalachians Region, which includes Lawrence, Johnson, Floyd, Martin and Magoffin counties, were $604,715,099 in 2012, compared to $574,824,239, the survey shows.

Direct expenditures in the region totaled $384,678,816, compared to $365,664,274, according to the survey.

Lawrence County's total tourism expenditures in 2012 were $21,447,664, compared to $18,708,847 in 2011, and its direct expenditures were $13,643,552, compared to $11,901,302 in 2011.

Sluss to appeal Facebook ruling

INEZ — After reviewing evidence and hearing testimony at an evidentiary hearing regarding Facebook friendships between two jurors and the mother of a murder victim, Martin Circuit Court Judge John David Preston denied a new trial for Ross Brandon Sluss, who was convicted in the 2010 head-on collision that killed 10-year-old Destiny Brewer and injured three others.

The Kentucky Supreme Court ordered the hearing in September 2012 to determine whether two jurors answered questions truthfully concerning Facebook issues, with both jurors being questioned on the witness stand.

Sluss's attorney, Jerry Patton filed a notice of appeal April 16, following Preston's decision on March 18. Patton says in the notice that "Sluss takes this appeal directly to the Kentucky Supreme Court."

"The opinion of the Kentucky Supreme Court Reversing and Remanding rendered Sept. 20, 2012, directs in the conclusion that if the Trial Court does not make such a determination (granting a new trial)," Patton's notice says, "then it shall make findings of fact in support of this conclusion in its order which shall be appealable by the

Company implements economic development initiative

FRANKFORT — American Electric Power says it has contracted with InSite Consulting to help local economic development authorities help themselves and their communities to enhance economic development and business in its service area of Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

Since early this year, InSite has been working with representatives of the Southeast Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and local business, community, civic and government leaders to develop a cohesive, regional approach to enhancing development, according to an AEP press release. The cohesive approach also involves the Big Sandy Area Development District, the Kentucky River Area Development District and the FIVCO Area Development District.

A meeting was held in Lawrence County in February with local officials, business leaders as well as representatives of AEP and InSite.

Lawrence County Judge-Executive John Osborne said he took InSite representative Tonya Crist out and showed interesting sites in the county, such as the cabins, the horse-riding stables, the lake, the golf course, the park and the amphitheater.

"She wanted to know about some of the larger properties that were available in the county and about water and sewage, shops, schools, medical facilities, etc.," Osborne said in February. "I guess they are grouping us with eight or nine counties and what they want us to do is to put together a package so that when they try to show people what we have, it's right there and they can match the company up to the county that offers what they are looking for."

One objective of Kentucky Power, InSite and others is to create a "successful regional economic Floyd County's total tourism expenditures in 2012 were $70,216,640, compared to $65,439,552 in 2011, while its direct expenditures were $44,667,074, compared to $41,628,214 in 2011.

Total expenditures in Martin County in 2012 were $6,569,121, compared to $6,145,108 in 2011, and its direct expenditures were $4,178,830, compared to $3,909,102 in 2011.

Total expenditures totaled $6,181,931 in Magoffin County in 2012, compared to $5,724,010 in 2011, while its direct expenditures were $3,932,526, compared to $3,641,228 in 2011.

Tourism is one of Kentucky's top industries, with an annual economic impact in 2012 of more than $12.2 billion, an increase of 4.4 percent from 2011, the survey shows.

The annual survey also showed that tourism was responsible for 174,006 jobs in Kentucky in 2012, an increase of 4,078 jobs from the previous year. These jobs generated more than $2.7 billion in wages for Kentucky workers, an increase of $117 million from 2011.

Tourism and travel industry employment in the Kentucky Appalachians Region totaled 6,073 in 2012; it was 6,005 in 2011.

Tourism generated $1.227 billion in tax revenues for local and state governments in 2012, an increase from $1.223 billion in 2011.

"The Kentucky tourism industry continues to do well, which is good news for all of us," Gov. Steve Beshear said in a press release. "These figures illustrate the importance of tourism in Kentucky as well as in communities big and small across the commonwealth."

The release of the figures coincides with National Travel and Tourism Week, celebrated May 4-12 this year.

"This is great news for our tourism industry in Kentucky and follows the announcement earlier this year that the water level at Lake Cumberland is going up – which should help tourism in that region," said Tourism, Arts and Heritage Secretary Mancheta Sparrow. "We want to build on these successes and keep adding more attractions and jobs for Kentuckians."

The survey was produced for the Kentucky Tourism, Arts and Heritage Cabinet by Certec Inc. of Versailles. More details about the tourism economic impact study are available at www.kentuckytourism.com/industry.

pornography and whether it has been trafficked, which is much worse. It depicts children."

Green said he spoke with Merlo after the court appearance and was told that the case will be presented as soon as possible.

"He has no criminal history in the state of Kentucky, not even a speeding ticket, but you'd be surprised to know in cases like this they usually don't have a history," Green said.

Dunning was released on a $25,000 cash bond, with conditions that includes a requirement that he stay 1,000 feet from any school, daycare or place where there are under age children. He is not allowed to possess any computer or electronics device, and is on strict home confinement.

During his court appearance Monday, the judge denied requests by his attorney, Steve Owens of Pikeville, for a bond reduction and kept Dunning on the same restrictions for home confinement.

"He can't leave his house," Green said. "He will remain on home confinement until he is indicted, and then the judge will make the decision on what will be done at that time."

Dunning has temporarily closed his office, Dunning Medical Clinic, which is located on the same street as the Learning Ladder Academy Preschool.

Dunning was charged after Kentucky State Police Post 9 detectives executed a search warrant at his residence, at which time computers and other associated equipment were seized and has been sent to the state lab for testing.

The search warrant was obtained as a result of an online investigation by Post 9 detectives.

According to an online search, the Kentucky Board of Medical License lists no actions taken against Dunning.

Dunning, according to the Web site, is an active physician, practicing family medicine in a private practice and has been licensed since March 20, 2008, after graduating from the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine in 2005.

Following his arrest, Dunning was taken into custody and transported to the Floyd County Detention Center.

ment to the Johnson County Sheriff's Department without making any materially false statements or withholding material information, during this statement she again restated that she was not involved in any way in the murder, wasn't present at the murder or had any part in the disposal of the bodies.

"On April 8, the Commonwealth first became aware of statements made by Fannin to four other individuals that contradict the statements given to the Johnson County Sheriff's Department. These statements include alleged statements made by Fannin which would indicate that she helped in the disposal of the bodies, clean up of the murder scene, and was present during the murder of at least Sandra Blanton."

Notice of the motion was also provided to William Blanton's attorney, because if the motion is granted, the commonwealth could potentially seek the death penalty against him. The death penalty was initially taken off the table in the plea deal with Fannin.

Larry and Sandra Blanton were reported missing the first week of September 2012, and William Blanton along with Fannin were both considered persons of interest in the case.

Fannin apparently helped authorities in the investigation. Fannin, who was indicted last year on charges of flagrant non-support and promoting contraband, entered a plea agreement with the commonwealth's attorney's office in exchange for her cooperation in the investigation, according to court documents.

Fannin agreed to provide information in exchange for the commonwealth's dismissal with prejudice of the charges against her. There was also an agreement to not prosecute her for any crimes that she may have committed after she learned of the deaths of Larry and Sandra Blanton, and to not prosecute her for any charges of which the KSP, Johnson County Sheriff's Office, Paintsville Police Department and Operation UNITE currently have open investigations pending, which at the time of the agreement was none.

The commonwealth also agreed to not seek criminal flagrant non-support charges against her for any child support arrearage owed through Lawrence County, according to the plea deal. The commonwealth also agreed and recommended to the court for the modification of the conditions of her release so that she may be placed in a 180-day rehabilitation program, such as Karen's Place in Louisa, and she will be responsible for securing funding for her rehabilitation placement through operation UNITE or other funding sources and if she has previously or is granted visita-development organization by completing a client readiness assessment and gap analysis for each county; establish and execute an economic development model; and create a 'blueprint' outlining the region's economic development strengths, including a comprehensive inventory of available, developmental sites within the region," the release said.

"Economic development does not just happen on its own," Kentucky Power external affairs manager Brad Hall said. "It takes a concerted effort of all involved to successfully market an area to those looking to site new business and industry. An area or a region needs to be prepared when companies call with sitting proposals. Economic development is a competitive business, if a region does not have a plan to facilitate economic development or prompt answers to the questions that potential enterprises seek, then those companies move on to the areas or regions that do, and opportunity is lost."

Hall is a former Chamber of Commerce executive and said that what InSite and the others are finding is that Eastern Kentucky has "much to offer potential businesses," the release said. The problem is, those benefits are not organized in a manner that can be quickly identified and presented to potential business developers, according to the release.

The overall goal of the initiative is to develop and institute a regional organizational structure that is active, functional and successful in fostering economic development, increasing jobs and stimulating investments in Eastern Kentucky.

InSite and Kentucky Power have met in nearly all of the counties involved with the initiative and is working to wrap up its organizational and assessment meetings. Afterward, those involved will examine strengths and weaknesses, identify opportunities and develop a framework for regional economic development.

"AEP and Kentucky Power are pleased to sponsor and underwrite this economic development effort in our service area," Greg Pauley, president and chief operating officer of Kentucky Power, said. "We are offering this at no cost to participants because the entire region benefits when companies choose to locate their operations in Eastern Kentucky. It's obvious from the initial rounds of meetings that Eastern Kentucky has plenty to offer with regard to business recruitment and retention. But, we also have some weaknesses that need to be identified and corrected to be successful in sitting more industry here. It all begins with a comprehensive plan and approach, and that is what we are trying to accomplish with InSite's help and local support. Business growth helps our communities, our schools, our tax bases and our future."

Jared Arnett, president and CEO of the Southeast Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, said he believes the partnerships established and gaps identified throughout the process will be invaluable when establishing the region as a competitive entity in the world of economic development.

After reviewing information gathered thus far, Crist said the communities are "open to and hungry for" the regional concept for economic development, but there is no structure for them to operate and that the area has "tremendous" business assets to leverage and there is no reason why the southeastern region of Kentucky should not be on the radar screens for prospective companies given the assets including road infrastructure, available infrastructure at the industrial parks, excess capacities for water and sewer, a good hospital network, natural gas supply and a trainable workforce.

"We all understand that this initiative is not going to overhaul our economy overnight," Hall said. "But we all believe it will have a positive impact in the long run. I'm convinced it will result in landing development opportunities that we might otherwise have missed if we weren't acting in concert to improve economic development."

appellant."

Preston said in his order that "after reviewing the evidence and having heard testimony of all the witnesses and reviewing documentation obtained from Facebook, the Court does not conclude that sufficient grounds existed at the time of the trial that would call for either juror to be struck as a juror."

"That being the case, the court does not grant a new trial in this case," Preston said in the order.

The first juror testified at the hearing that she had a Facebook account at the time of the trial and that she "friended" April Brewer, mother of the victim, two or three months after the trial and that there had been no further communication.

The second juror also denied being friends with Brewer and said she was more involved in reading books than communicating on the Internet. She said she had others living in the household who used the computer.

The Supreme Court issued the opinion after Sluss filed an appeal of his conviction in which he originally raised 16 issues and concluded that the trial court erred in not giving full consideration to Sluss' claim of juror misconduct, "which is founded on a question of first impression alleging that jurors may have lied during voir dire and juror bias through the use of social media websites, namely Facebook."

Mollett is Head Start Parent of the Year

INEZ — Until last year, Lisa Mollett always worked outside the home.

"I have a teaching degree and taught school for eight years, and I worked in advertising for 15 years," says Mollett, 49, of Inez. "I had to quit working due to an illness and, from February to August, I was home."

According to Mollett, she had trouble transitioning to life as a stay-at-home mom. "I was feeling like I had lost my identity," she says. "Suddenly, I was nowhere."

When her now 4-year-old daughter, Shawna, started attending Head Start at Eden Elementary School last August, it gave Mollett the opportunity to volunteer in the classroom.

"I found a very welcoming community in Head Start," Mollett notes. "It's provided me with a place to go and to use my acquired skills — business and teaching — in a positive way to influence the future."

When Big Sandy Area Community Action Program's (BSACAP) Head Start Program asked parents to write a letter explaining, "What Head Start Has Done For Me," Mollett detailed her experiences. Her fellow Martin County Head Start parents selected her letter as the county winner. An independent committee then reviewed the winning letters from BSACAP's seven Head Start Programs and chose Mollett as the Head Start Parent of the Year, based on the content of the letter as well as the amount of time she has donated to the program in the form of volunteer hours and attendance at parent meetings.

A grateful Mollett says, "Head Start is a fabulous program."

Indeed, she credits Head Start with helping improve Shawna's socialization skills.

"She's the baby of the family and has had developmental problems from infancy," Mollett adds. "She's adopted and was born addicted to narcotics. At 7 months, she couldn't turn over. We were warned she would never walk or talk. We refused to accept that. We treated her no differently than the other children."

In an effort to help cultivate Shawna's development and learning, Mollett and her husband, John, who have six other children ranging in age from 8 to 31, enrolled her in First Steps, a statewide program that provides services to children with developmental disabilities from birth to age 3. After those services ended, Shawna started working with a speech therapist.

Mollett says Head Start, combined with these programs, has fostered Shawna's progress.

"Shawna can count to 70," Mollett says. "She recognizes letters and sounds out words. Now, when I read to her, she wants to read the book because she can recognize words."

"In her last evaluation, she had passed her peers. Her progress has been amazing."

Mollett also acknowledges Head Start with helping Shawna in other ways.

"She wasn't much for sharing and it has provided an insight into that," she explains.

In addition to her classroom volunteering, Mollett serves as secretary of BSACAP's Head Start Policy Council and sits on the school's policy committee and parent council.

Away from the classroom, Mollett teaches Sunday school and leads the church's drama department.

"I write, produce and direct plays," she said. "I don't turn my mind off much."

Delsie Fletcher, Eden Elementary Head Start family service worker, agrees.

"Back in the fall, she arranged for all the children to get tickets to see the 'The Ugly Duckling' at the Mountain Arts Center," recalls Fletcher. "She also partnered with businesses and agencies to get them toys for Christmas."

"She's a wonderful guardian to these children."

LISA MOLLETT OF Inez was honored as Big Sandy Area Community Action Program's Head Start Parent of the Year.

Health provider forum slated

FRANKFORT — The Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS) and the Kentucky Department of Insurance (DOI) have scheduled forums for health care providers in each of the eight Medicaid regions during May and June.

The forums will be attended by senior officials from CHFS, including Cabinet Secretary Audrey Tayse Haynes, Medicaid Commissioner Lawrence Kissner, Public Health Commissioner Dr. Stephanie Mayfield Gibson and Dr. Allen Brenzel of the Department for Behavioral Health, and Brian Staples, DOI ombudsman.

"It is of vital importance that we continue to open the lines of communication with the provider community, and that is why I have directed the cabinet to increase education about our Medicaid managed care efforts," Gov. Steve Beshear said. "Managed care is an approach that will ultimately move the health needle in the right direction for Kentucky, and we must ensure everyone is working together toward that goal."

The forums are designed to allow medical providers to meet face-to-face with representatives of the managed care organizations (MCOs) and DOI to discuss concerns about proper billing, the appeals processes and any specific regional issues, in addition to a general conversation about how to improve the overall system of health care delivery in Kentucky.

"We look forward to traveling around the state to engage in these important conversations with our health care providers," said Haynes. "Managed care is the right approach for Kentucky, but we know that we can continue to improve the system to make it work better for everyone involved from providers to Medicaid recipients."

The sessions will follow the same agenda, beginning with a 9-11:30 a.m. provider information general session with cabinet officials and concluding with a 1-3:30 p.m. session on provider billing with the MCOs in each region. The forum for Region 8 is set for today (Wednesday) at the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in Prestonsburg.

The commonwealth also agreed not to seek the death penalty for William E. Blanton for any charges relating to the deaths of his parents.

The plea agreement also says that "in the event the Defendant discloses information concerning the whereabouts of the bodies, that proves to be false, then both parties are released from this agreement, and any statements made by Amanda Fannin as a result of this agreement will be considered offered in proffer and not usable against her."

The bodies of Larry and Sandra Blanton were discovered buried next to their barn at Oil Springs. Authorities searched the property for approximately nine hours before the bodies were located.

10 must-have smartphone apps

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

Did you take the plunge on your first smartphone recently? Congratulations! You're holding a lot of power and possibilities in your fingertips.

Of course, that can be a little overwhelming, too. There are well over 700,000 apps in both the Apple App Store and Google Play.

Take a deep breath! You don't need to dive in all at once. Here's your starter kit. These 10 apps work with the iPhone and Android smartphones. They won't cost you a thing, but you'll use them every day.

As you're getting to know your new phone, give them a download. You'll be very glad you did. And if you're a seasoned smartphone user but haven't tried these apps, what are you waiting for?

Chrome - One of the most overlooked but vital apps you'll want to download is a good browser, and Google Chrome is one of the best! Your iPhone didn't come with it out of the box, and inexplicably, your Android phone probably didn't either!

This mobile browser is fast, secure and customizable. You can sync it with your desktop Chrome to import all your bookmarks, favorites and passwords. It also has incognito mode for private browsing! You'll be doing a lot of browsing with your new smartphone so you might as well do it right.

Google Maps - The days of being stranded in an unfamiliar part of town asking for directions are over. Google Maps is your go-to tool for all things geographic.

You can find driving directions, walking directions, public transit maps and more. Or just search for nearby points of interest! Maps collaborates with your phone's built-in GPS sensors to pinpoint your location.

Facebook - With 1 billion users, Facebook could be called the official social network of humanity, and it's available as an app for smartphones.

You'll be able to see your newsfeed, upload photos and videos, and post updates wherever you go! Everything you love about Facebook is available in the mobile app and streamlined for the palm of your hand.

YouTube - Who doesn't love watching fun and amazing videos online? Your smartphone can do that with both hands tied behind its back - if it had hands. All of YouTube's 2 billion videos can be seen on YouTube's official smartphone app. You can even use this app to record, upload, edit and share videos right from your mobile device!

Onavo Extend - All that YouTube watching is going eat up a big chunk of your monthly cellular data plan. Your best bet is to use Wi-Fi when you can, but when you can't there's Onavo Extend.

This free app automatically compresses the data you send and receive to get up to five times more data out of your plan. It also monitors usage and gives you reports on which apps are hogging your precious data.

Kindle - You don't need a Kindle e-reader to read Amazon e-books. Your smartphone can run Amazon's Kindle app. Now you can read your electronic library on your mobile device.

Danny K. Blevins

Blevins recipient of Air Force grant

PAINTSVILLE — A Highland Elementary science teacher Danny K. Blevins has been named as one of the recipients of an Air Force Association Educator Grant for 2013.

The non-profit organization holds the annual grant-writing competition and awards grants of $250 to each winning proposal. The purpose of the grants are to assist educators to continue bringing knowledge of science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) into the classroom.

In meeting the terms of the grant, Blevins plans to incorporate aerospace activities not only in his classroom but for the entire Highland Elementary student population. Projects currently planned for this school year include a guest speaker from Morehead State University's Space Science Center, a model rocket launch, radio controlled helicopter experiences, a display of historic space related items and computer based learning opportunities.

Blevins is well-known among local circles for his involvement in aerospace education and astronomy. He is an alumni of the NASA "NEW" program, a former Jet Propulsion Solar System Ambassador and at one time co-hosted an astronomy television program that was aired on several cable systems called The Star-guides. Blevins has also worked extensively with the East Kentucky Science Center and the Morehead State University's Space Science Center.

Nurses recognized at Three Rivers

LOUISA — At some point in our lives, nearly every one of us will come into contact with the healthcare system — whether we're rushing to the emergency room, getting a routine physical, or seeking advice for a persistent cold. And no matter the setting, virtually all of these encounters will have one important thing in common: nurses.

Nurses represent the largest workforce in the U.S. healthcare system, with ranks of approximately 3.1 million, and their contributions to the healthcare field are many.

"At Three Rivers Medical Center (TRMC), our nurses are a large segment of our team as well," a press release said. "From our Emergency Room to our newborn nursery or med/surg unit, to our surgical suites and ICU, nurses are the 'face' of our hospital and the frontline of our care teams. They coordinate patient treatment, take and record vital signs, administer medication, and assist with surgeries, deliveries and emergent care. They work alongside fellow nurses, physicians, and other clinicians to carefully track patient progress.

In addition to their clinical expertise, "nurses are known for the compassion and support they provide to patients and their families," the release said. "In an environment where individuals can be frightened or confused by what is happening around them, nurses help explain diagnoses, procedures, tests and medications. They respond to patient concerns, answer questions and help educate patients on their care and treatment. But beyond the skills and knowledge they offer, it's often the kind words, or warm hands, or listening ears they provide that make nurses the most trusted professionals in healthcare.

"At TRMC, we are thankful for the compassion and clinical excellence that our nurses exhibit every day whether at the bedside or in leadership positions."

During National Nurses Week that began May 6, "we are taking time to recognize and celebrate the nurses in our hospital and community. And we urge you — if you see a nurse this week, or any week of the year — to take a moment to reflect on the importance of the job they do, and thank them for helping deliver quality patient care," the release said.

Paul B. Hall to honor nurses

PAINTSVILLE — Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center will give special attention to the men and women who have dedicated their lives to healing others during National Nurses Week.

Annually, National Nurses Week begins on May 6 — also known as National Nurses Day — and ends on May 12, the birthday of Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing.

The theme for this year's National Nurses Week is "Delivering Quality & Innovation in Patient Care," which was designated by the American Nurses Association. "Continually at the bedside, nurses make their patients' well-being a priority and regularly develop innovative solutions to enhance care," a Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center press release said. "Their ongoing commitment to quality is what moves health care forward — what often begins as a solution for one patient, becomes an advancement that benefits countless others."

"Nurses play an essential role in enhancing patient care, increasing access, coordinating care and reducing health care costs," said Venice Branham, CNO. "They are at the forefront of innovation every day, and they deserve special recognition. We want them to know how much we value their hard work and commitment to superior patient care — honoring them is what this week is all about."

"All of us at Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center want to thank our outstanding nurses who work tirelessly to ensure the health and welfare of our patients," said Debbie Trimble, CEO. "We'd like to thank them for their professionalism, their commitment to the highest standards, and their undying dedication to those they serve."

or purchase them from right inside the app. You can highlight and make notes and you'll never lose your place even when switching between devices. That's because all your e-books are synced to your Amazon account.

Skype - Wait a second, why would you need an app for making phone calls on your phone? Doesn't it do that already? Well, sort of.

Skype lets you make video calls, which your phone may not be equipped to do out of the box. Plus, you can make video or voice calls for free to other Skype users around the world, over either cellular or Wi-Fi. You can even text for free using Skype instant messaging.

Carbonite Mobile - Your mobile phone is going to fill up with precious photos and videos very quickly. Unfortunately, your phone is susceptible to theft, hackers and accidental damage.

Make sure your precious data is safe! Carbonite Mobile automatically backs up your photos and videos to its secure servers for free.

Plus, on Android smartphones, Carbonite Mobile can track a lost or stolen smartphone and wipe your sensitive data remotely.

Full disclosure: Carbonite is one of my advertisers. But I'm also a satisfied, long-time customer.

Angry Birds Star Wars - Let's be honest: One of the real reasons you wanted a smartphone was the games! The Angry Birds series is the most popular of them all!

The latest twist on this mobile classic is as fun and addicting as ever. And with dozens of levels and expansions, it will be a while before you get bored!

Flashlight LED HD - Did you know your smartphone can also be used for creative and unconventional purposes? For instance, there are apps that allow you to control the camera's flash or screen brightness to turn your gadget into a makeshift flashlight!

Flashlight LED HD is one such app, and it's a trustworthy one - other flashlight apps have been known to steal your data. This app is bright and works well for finding your way in the dark, but be wary! It can drain your battery fast.

Fundraiser is success

PAINTSVILLE — Our Lady of the Mountains School teamed up with McDonald's in Paintsville April 18 to raise money for its school through a McTeacher's Night Fundraiser.

A team of teachers and staff from the school worked alongside McDonald's employees at different positions, including front counter cashiers and drive-thru order presenters. A portion of sales from the teacher's shift totaling over $1,200.00 was donated to Our Lady of the Mountains.

"Thanks to the support of parents, students, and community members, the fundraiser was a huge success for the school," a McDonald's press release said.

McDonald's of Paintsville is locally owned and operated by Bob and Tom Hutchison.

McDonald's restaurants in the area host McTeacher's Night throughout the year as fundraisers for local schools. As a result, restaurants in Central and Southern West Virginia, Southeastern Ohio and Eastern Kentucky donated almost $30,000 to education during the 2011-12 school year.

For more information on this fundraiser, visit your local McDonald's and ask to speak to a manager about McTeacher's Night.

Bulldogs fall to Boyd County in Derby Classic, blank East Carter in 5 innings

CANNONSBURG — Host Boyd County claimed three wins in three days in the Derby Classic late last week.

Boyd County defeated Lawrence County, Lincoln County and Cooper. Thanks to the run in its own tournament, Boyd County exited the Derby Classic 17-11. Boyd County catcher Jacob Barnwell connected for two doubles and a single to lead home-standing Boyd County to a 6-2 win over Lawrence County in the opening game on the Derby Classic on Thursday night. Boyd County received an offensive boost up and down its batting order, which produced at least one run in four of six at-bats in the game versus former 16th Region foe Lawrence County.

Dylan Grimm went 2-for-4 with two runs and two RBI and Robbie Shivel, hitting out of the leadoff spot in the Boyd County batting order, provided two singles and scored twice for the winning team.

Boyd County pitcher Corey Sublett claimed the win. Sublett improved to 3-2 after posting the win over the Lawrence County baseball club.

The Lions battled back to claim the victory after Lawrence County scored both of its runs in the first inning.

Boyd County after scoring once in the bottom half of the second inning, plated two runs in the third inning to move ahead 3-2. After getting out in front, Boyd County never trailed again.

Boyd County pushed across six runs on 10 hits. The Lions also didn't commit an error as part of a stellar defensive performance.

Lawrence County freshman pitcher Austin Bailey took the loss. Sophomore Josh Cantrell pitched out of a relief role for the Bulldogs.

Bulldogs blank East Carter in 5 innings

CANNONSBURG — Lawrence County senior pitcher Brandon Stevens threw five shutout innings to lead the Bulldogs to a 10-0 win over East Carter via the Kentucky High School Athletic Association's 10-Run Mercy Rule in the Derby Classic at Boyd County's Addington Field Friday night.

With the win, Stevens moved to 6-2.

East Carter senior pitcher Cole Boggs took the loss.

Lawrence County

improved to 18-7 after posting the win. The Bulldogs returned to the win column following a four-run loss to host Boyd County one day earlier.

The Lawrence County baseball team won for the fourth time in five games.

East Carter dropped to 13-13 after suffering the loss. The Raiders fell short in their third straight game after putting together a two-game winning streak.

The Bulldogs, under the direction of head coach Travis Feltner, plated 10 runs on 13 hits en route to the mercy rule victory.

In the nightcap Friday night, host Boyd County edged Lincoln County 3-2.

Lawrence County only committed one error in the winning effort.

Three East Carter pitchers worked against hard-hitting Lawrence County. Neither of the three East Carter hurlers had much success.

Offensively, senior catcher Clark Rice and junior outfielder Joe Wallen led the Bulldogs.

Rice drove in five runs with two doubles and a single for the Lawrence County baseball club. Wallen went 3-for-3 with three RBI and a pair of runs for the Bulldogs.

Lawrence County plated one run in the bottom half of the first inning and never faltered defensively. The Bulldogs scored three runs in the bottom half of the second inning to push their advantage out to a 4-0 lead.

After being held scoreless in the third inning, Lawrence County pushed across two runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth to move ahead 10-0 and force the game to end via the KHSAA's 10-Run Mercy Rule.

Lawrence County leadoff hitter Ryan Kingsmore delivered two hits and scored twice. Adam Cavins scored twice and Josh Cantrell and Noah Lambert each crossed home plate once for the Bulldogs.

East Carter, which could only muster three singles offensively, committed two errors in the setback.

Former 16th Region rivals, Lawrence County and East Carter are not scheduled to meet again this season.

Elk hunt drawing results now available

FRANKFORT — Hunters can now go online at fw.ky.gov to see if they were drawn for Kentucky's 2013-14 elk hunts.

The Commonwealth Office of Technology has selected 1,010 names from among the 34,397 people who applied for the hunts. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources received 61,051 applications from as far away as Hawaii, Alaska, Ontario, Maine, Florida and Texas. Hunters could apply for up to two permits.

This season will be the 13th year for elk hunting in the state. Kentucky launched its successful elk restoration program with the release of seven elk from Kansas in 1997. Over the next five years, the department released 1,542 more elk from six states.

Kentucky's elk herd now numbers more than 10,000 animals — a number higher than all the states east of the Mississippi River combined.

Hunters must go online to the department's website to determine if they were drawn. Applicants must provide their 19-digit confirmation number or their social security number and birth date.

The department's website contains a wealth of information to help hunters with their decision on a hunting area. Kentucky's elk zone is split into five different areas, including two at-large areas and three limited entry areas (LEAs).

Each area includes public land open for hunting. Since not all public lands have elk, hunters should look up elk harvest results from previous years to help guide their decision on where to apply.

sion on where to apply.

Hunters should note that all or part of two wildlife management areas (WMAs) have been designated as Active Restoration Areas and will be off-limits to elk hunting this year. The areas include all of Fishtrap WMA in Pike County and the southernmost tract of Corrigan WMA in Bell County.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife relocated 50 elk to Corrigan WMA in 2010 and 26 elk to Fishtrap WMA since 2012 to provide source herds for those areas.

Drawn hunters have until July 5 to apply for their hunting zone preferences. The drawing for hunting areas will be held later in the month. Once a hunter is drawn for a particular area, that person will not be allowed to switch areas.
